

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS:

EXTERNAL REVIEW OF THE WORLD RESOURCES INSTITUTE

SUMMARY OF PROCUREMENT

WRI intends to award a Fixed Price Plus Reimbursable type contract for an external review of WRI's programmatic work. Included in this assessment will be a review of the effectiveness and efficiency of WRI's Core Functions (Communications, Development, Human Resources, Managing for Results, Operations, and Research, Data and Innovation) in contributing to and supporting delivery of the programmatic work.

The 2021 External Review is intended to provide an independent mid-term assessment of progress towards delivering WRI's 2018-2022 Strategic Plan (www.wri.org/about/strategic-plan). The review will assess the effectiveness, relevance, coherence, and efficiency<sup>1</sup> of WRI's implementation. The results of the 2021 External Review will inform the programming and implementation of the last period of the 2018-2022 Strategic Plan. Further, results will feed into the development of WRI's forthcoming five-year Strategic Plan.

The proposal deadline is December 21, 2020. The External Review is expected to begin March 15, 2021 and is expected to be completed, along with all deliverables, by September 30, 2021.

BACKGROUND

About the World Resources Institute

Founded in 1982, WRI is a global research organization that seeks to turn big ideas into action at the nexus of environment, economic opportunity, and human well-being. Its more than 1,000 experts and staff work closely with governments, private sector, and civil society to drive ambitious action based on high-quality data and objective analysis. WRI's mission is "to move human society to live in ways that protect Earth's environment and its capacity to provide for the needs and aspirations of present and future generations." With its partners, WRI has demonstrated the success of breakthrough ideas and scaled up these solutions for far-reaching, enduring impact. In recent years, WRI has expanded its presence in major emerging economies by opening offices in China, Brasil, Europe, India, Indonesia and Mexico, as well as a growing presence in Colombia and Africa.

Since its founding, the World Resources Institute (WRI) has received significant support from bilateral development agencies of OECD countries. This support has been crucial to enabling WRI to take a strategic, focused, and long-term approach to addressing environmental and development challenges and to expand its presence and influence in the developing world where the bulk of WRI's work is concentrated. As part of WRI's commitment to institutional excellence and to accountability towards its core bilateral partners, a comprehensive External Review of WRI is conducted every 3-4 years.

WRI focuses on seven urgent global challenges that must be addressed to reduce poverty, grow economies and protect natural systems:

1. Climate: Protect communities and natural ecosystems from damage caused by greenhouse gas emissions, and generate opportunities for people by catalyzing a global transition to a low-carbon economy.
2. Energy: Drive the scale-up of clean, affordable power systems throughout the world to deliver sustainable socio-economic development.
3. Food: Ensure the world's food systems reduce their impact on the environment, drive economic opportunity, and sustainably feed 9.6 billion people by 2050.
4. Forests: Alleviate poverty, enhance food security, conserve biodiversity, and mitigate climate change by reducing forest loss and restoring productivity to degraded, deforested lands.
5. Water: Achieve a water-secure future by mapping, measuring, and mitigating global water risks.
6. Sustainable Cities: Improve quality of life in cities by developing and scaling environmentally, socially, and economically sustainable urban and transport solutions.
7. The Ocean: We are charting the path for a New Ocean Economy that is good for jobs, economic growth and human health -- while protecting and restoring the ocean.

WRI's 2018-2022 Strategic Plan

WRI's latest Strategic Plan focuses on addressing seven interrelated environment and development global challenges that must be addressed with urgency; Food, Forests, Water, Energy, Cities, Climate and the Ocean. The Plan employs a "Count It, Change It, Scale It" approach: rigorous, independent research is used to influence government policies, business strategies, and civil society action as well as inform our own priorities and approaches. The approach uses high quality and successful demonstration examples to influence policy on a national, regional, and international stage, ensuring strong communication and alignment between all levels.

A key part of this approach is the spotlight on fewer, larger projects, with a special focus on "delivery platforms" – large scale, multi-stakeholder, multi-year initiatives aimed at advancing pre-defined goals that, if achieved, will significantly contribute to achieving our mission. In both WRI's core work and delivery platforms, we seek to create an irresistible offer, an identified "tipping point," and a clear strategy for scaling.

Guided by changes in the world and what we have learned in our previous work, the Strategic Plan sets out seven key imperatives – "hallmarks" – to support delivery on the ambitious goals. These include:

1. We will focus on catalyzing the systemic changes required to address urgent global challenges;
2. We will increase our focus on jobs, health, gender and social equity, and human security;
3. We will be at the forefront of the data revolution;
4. We will make the best use of our global network;

5. We will be disciplined in choosing what we do, creating clear strategies for turning ideas into action;
6. We will act with more agility, accept more risk and manage it better;
7. We will equip WRI for the new world in which we operate.

Previous Evaluations and Reviews

The last External Review, conducted in 2016, helped inform WRI's 2018-2022 Strategic Plan through valuable contributions to institutional learning and strategic prioritization and planning.

Evaluations undertaken in the past five years include the following:

- 2020 NDC Partnership Midterm Review
- 2020 Impact Evaluation of GFW-Pro
- 2019-2020 Impact Evaluation of Global Forest Watch
- 2019 Impact Assessment of Land Accelerator work for the DOEN Foundation and BMZ
- 2018 Terminal Evaluation of Scaling- Up the Sustainable Energy for All Building Efficiency Accelerator for UNEP/ GEF
- 2016 External Review of WRI's portfolio by TripleLine for WRI's Core Donors. The External Review included an in-depth review of 3 Signature Initiatives; Aqueduct, Global Restoration Initiative, and the International Climate Action Initiative

SCOPE OF WORK AND OUTPUTS/DELIVERABLES

The external review will provide a high-level assessment of WRI progress in implementing the 2018-2022 Strategic Plan. The effectiveness, relevance, coherence, and efficiency of WRI's implementation of the programmatic work will be assessed. The findings of the review will inform WRI's ongoing implementation of the 2018-2022 Strategic Plan as well as the development of the upcoming 2023- 2028 Strategic Plan. The review will include the following components, with indicative level of effort in parentheses:

- 1. A high-level assessment of WRI's progress implementing its 2018-2022 Strategic Plan: (80%) including programmatic strategies for delivering on the seven global challenges, covering work undertaken by WRI's Programs, Centers, International Offices and delivery Platforms; programmatic results to date against the Outcome indicators and targets specified in the Results Framework of the 2018-2022 Strategic Plan, with particular attention to how and to what extent the Platforms<sup>2</sup> contribute to the targets and

<sup>2</sup> The assessment of Platforms contribution to WRI's Results Framework includes those Platforms that are WRI-owned (e.g. Aqueduct, Global Forest Watch, AFR100, etc.) as well as those that are co-owned by WRI (e.g. Global Commission on Adaptation (GCA), the Partnership for Accelerating a Circular Economy (PACE), the NDC Partnership (NDCP), the Partnering for Green Growth and the Global Goals 2030 (P4G), the New Climate Economy (NCE), the Coalition for Urban Transitions (CUT), the New Urban Mobility Alliance (NUMO), the Science Based Target Initiative (SBTi), and the Food and Land Use Coalition (FOLU), etc.).

Outcomes in the Results Framework; an assessment of the inclusion of the cross-cutting issues of poverty and gender; and recommendations on improving programmatic and implementation effectiveness in achieving Outcomes. Further, included in this assessment will be a review of the effectiveness and efficiency of WRI's Core Functions (Communications, Development, Human Resources, Managing for Results, Operations, and Research, Data and Innovation) in contributing to and supporting delivery on the seven global challenges. Where appropriate, comparisons with peer organizations may be helpful.

- 2. An in-depth review of the Africa Strategy: (20%) an assessment of progress implementing "WRI in Africa," its 5-Year Strategy; including the cross-cutting themes of poverty and gender; and how effective the Global Programs, Centers and other relevant WRI-hosted Platforms were in contributing to WRI Africa's Outputs and Outcomes.

In the above components, the review will provide an assessment of WRI's response to and progress made against the recommendations outlined in the 2016 External Review with special attention to the inclusion of the cross-cutting issues of poverty, gender, and rights.

COVID-19 Implications: With the COVID-19 pandemic outbreak, WRI has embarked on a serious effort to shift and adjust to the new realities and ways of working to achieve our objectives. While the overall transformations that need to take place remain the same, the strategy to achieve those transformations is different. COVID-19 implications should be taken into account in the external review, where possible, including assessing WRI's response and agility in shifting strategy to meet new realities.

With uncertainty surrounding business-related travel due to COVID-19, it is anticipated that much of the review will be conducted virtually with limited in-person interaction at WRI's global office in Washington, DC. This will require working across multiple time-zones. This may change as the circumstances unfold in the COVID-19 pandemic.

The consultants will start by producing an Inception Note setting out proposed methods and a work plan for the conducting the review according to the agreed upon terms of reference, including articulating key questions, approaches to measuring progress and learning, approach to review implementation, data management and informational needs. The consultants, in coordination with WRI and bilateral donor agencies providing institutional flexible funding<sup>3</sup>, will develop the list of individuals and organizations they will approach as part of the external review process. To the same group, the consultants will do a mid-term presentation indicating progress status and list of external stakeholders met. The final report will highlight strengths and weaknesses, issues for consideration, and recommendations for improvement for each of the components listed above. The report will include an executive summary. The consultants will provide WRI and above referenced donor partners with an advance draft of the report for review and comment before submitting the final report, however the consultants will have final authority on what is included in the final report.

The consultants will be responsible for designing robust review methodologies to achieve the Scope and Deliverables described above, collecting data and analyzing information obtained.

The external review should conform to OECD/DAC's Quality Standards for Development Evaluation. It is expected that the external review team describes and justifies appropriate evaluation approaches/ methodologies and methods for data collection in the Inception Note. Limitations to the chosen approaches/methodologies and methods shall be made explicit and the consequences of these limitations discussed. In the Inception Note, mitigation measures to address limitations shall also be presented. The consultants' Inception Note will be approved by WRI, with input from WRI and bilateral donor partners (in April 2021).

WRI will establish a small team to support the review process; provide information on WRI systems, strategies, and outcomes; and identify partners and other stakeholders familiar with WRI's work that the consultants can contact. WRI will manage the administrative components of the review and will be responsible for issuing the contract with the consultants, as well as processing payments.
